“ I had worked at Hickory Creek of Huntington for many years, and knew Alice well. Alice often talked of her sister Margaret, she called her Rusty. Alice's face would light up whenever we talked about her family. She missed her deceased family members and would cry at times when she talked about them. I would help her write letters to her sister and would read them to her she was oh so excited every time she got a letter from her. She always loved my peanut butter fudge that I made and brought into her. I will always remember her smile, hugs and the twinkle in her eye when she talked of her family. Margaret you are in my thoughts and prayers during this time of mourning.
