“ Daniel, my dad, was a good man and was a wonderful, loving father. He loved his children and grandchildren with all of his heart and was very proud of them. He was kind, generous, forgiving and had the gift of seeing people for what was on the inside. He always cared more about people than he cared about things. He has taught me so much by example about how to be a better person. I had the honor of caring for him throughout his battle with cancer, and I am very happy for him that he is now at peace and with God.
