“ I just heard about Delilah and wanted to let you know how sorry I am for your loss. I miss seeing everyone and have fond memories of how strong willed Delilah was. I admired that in her as she was so confident and went for what she wanted! I enjoyed her enthusiasm with her beads and had fun discussing them with her. Christy, you should call the clinic and tell them you want to finish her necklace and ask Cindy to send you an angel bead. Take care.

she is finally free....free from the pain and anguish that she fought like a brave soldier defending their country. i am saddened that she doesn't have the chance to experience life as an adult, but now she is a guardian angel for those of us still here.

“ Hello,

You don't know me and I didn't know Delilah, but my friend did, and with her being gone, it's effecting him severely. He didn't talk with her much anymore but he remembers all the times they spent together, and he remembers them fondly. I wanted to tell the family I am sorry for your loss. I have lost people to cancer. I know how it feels and I wish no one had to feel this way, because feeling powerless is one of the worst feelings in the world. I just wanted to extend my condolences and to let you know she is in my prayers and that the Lord has her now. She is looking down and smiling. I hope you're able to just take things one day at a time for now. Keep her memory in your hearts, this always helps me when I think of my loved ones. God bless you all and again I am sorry for your great loss.
