“ I so much wanted to come and see you all as it has been so very long. I still recall fondly and vividly the many times our families got together and the fun we always had...at the time it seemed like too many girls and not enough boys but we still had fun. What really sticks in my mind is that every single time it was time to go home it took something like an hour for the whole process. The kids were trapped in the car for the last half hour of the process while the parents (especially the dad's) just kept talking. I'm happy to have memories like that; Doyle and Dad just talking like mature adults (sorry, but as usual I wasn't listening to the moms). I cannot recall in all the many, many conversations I had with Mr. Doyle Paul that he was ever anything but friendly and very enjoyable to be around. I am truly sorry for your loss.
