“ Our sweet angel, Evelynn. There are no words to express how sad and broken hearted we are. We were so looking forward to having you here with us as Spring melted away the winter, but the winter will last much longer in our hearts this year.

From the moment I saw you cradled in your Momma's arms, the love I felt for you was instantaneous and everlasting. We are eternally bonded, as you are to all of your family. We know we will see you and interact with you again someday, but not for awhile. We know you'll be aware of us and what we're up to and we ache to have you with us now, to share every little thing here, together...but that was not for us to decide. Heavenly Father, for reasons we can't comprehend now, needed you home early. Maybe you were just too perfect to remain here; too delicate, too innocent, too angelic to be able to stay for very long. Whatever the reason, one thing is certain...we all love you, Evey, and we will forever. Keep a special watch over your big brother and your sisters. They were so looking forward to being able to take good care of you, but now, you can watch over them. Your Daddy & especially your Mommy are missing you terribly already, so help their hearts to heal, help them to feel you near sometimes when they're 'specially sad, or when they're 'specially happy about something they're sharing together as a family. I know they will feel you near.

Go in peace, angel child. Run through those beautiful meadows and wildflowers, play with the gentle animals and walk, holding the hand of Jesus on your beautiful journey.

I love you, Evelynn....forever.
