“ Hey I have a memory that I can never forget and that is Wen I went to peru and we went to a gas station and you bought all of us candy and you bought me a coffee and wen.we went back to the house me and you were talking about random things and we were laffing about what we were talking about but I remember one one thing you had said to me wen just you and I went on a walk you had told me to always try to be a great kid and wen you get older this is your only chance to be a kid so use this time up till you get to my age you will hate the world and then in Andrews you did my hair and that was the last time me and you had talked o don't remember the exact date or day but all I can say it's a sad story but wen I had found out you past the exact same day school got canceled and I had a friend over and we were going to go ride bikes together then mom showed up at our house after work me and my friend were walking out side she said that she needs to talk to me and I had brought my friend in side then my mom told me that you had past and my heart dropped and all the sudden I started to bursting into tears I can't handle that god had chose you if that was me I would've gave you one more chance or more but I can't even imagine if that was my parents but I'm almost 13 and I have been living with this since i first turned 12 and it's hard some times but I will get through this but if I had one wish it would bring you back to us so we don't have to deal with the pain
