“ We have shared so many great memories together. One of my favorite is of the time you, Brittany, me , and James went to see Theory Of A Deadman in concert together. We had a blast that night. One other memory is of the start of our forever long and ongoing inside joke. I'll never forget the first time we both found out that people thought we were actually a couple because of how close we were.. People speculated that my youngest son was yours even though those close who knew and were around us knew he wasn't. From that moment forward I would randomly harass you in front of unsuspecting friends and acquaintances about child support and how I'm still waiting for my first payment that I should have gotten 8 yes ago now lol. The reactions we got from that whole thing we're priceless because you always played into it with me firing back with something crazy and off the wall for why you haven't paid me yet. We laughed so hard sometimes at people's reactions because they were so mind blown to know you had another kid... Of course after getting a good laugh, we would fill them in on the story behind it and make sure they knew it was our inside joke and that we've never been anything more than just best friends. You're a for real genuine Ride Or Die Brother and I've always looked at you and your family and loved you all as my own and am glad to have been introduced to such amazing people and see just where the roots of your great big heart came from. I love your face Broski's and I'll never forget you ever, so this isn't goodbye. This is a see you later because I know we're going to meet again!
