“ I first met Sheri when we were kids. Our parents were church friends so we spent a lot of time together and we became fast friends. I have to say it was ‘game on’ from the start... Sheri and I always trying to push the limits & drive the grown folk crazy! We got into trouble together but it was more than that, really. We had such a great time together and always laughed, always felt connected, always seemed to understand each other.

We reconnected as adults and were lucky enough to spend some time together. It was as if no time had been lost and we laughed until we cried. I was impressed by Sheri all over again. She loved her daughter sad grandchildren. She was full of promise, full of hope about the future, always forgiving, a woman after my own heart.

Thank you, My friend, for your love, your perspective, your persistence. Be at peace and know I miss you already. You made a difference in my life. It's all love and bliss now, my friend.
