I didn't know Wyatt or his family but I do know what it's like losing someone who fought hard. My husband's Oncologist told me this and I love this. Anyone who stands up and fights has not lost the battle. They are a champion because they fought. You did not lose the battle little buddy, you are Super Wyatt, who set a great example to other kids in need and showed them how to be a champion fighter too. I love you buddy and I want to give you a big hug at the Lord's Return - when we will all be Champions.

I never met nor did I know the family, but I watched his story unfold in the news, and followed his path on Facebook. His courage, strength and smile touched my heart. I prayed for him daily and for the family. The tribute was beautiful and perfect for this little hero. I am so deeply sorry for the terrible loss, but what an honor to share his journey,

Me and Wyatt met in 2nd grade he brought a lot of joy to me and the people around. Wyatt was a really strong loving person, the minute I found out Wyatt had passed away my life stopped I didn't know how to live without him. I love Wyatt more than anyone could think. He was someone that I could talk to when needed and he knew he could come talk to me about his cancer or anything he needed to talk about. We all miss you Wyatt and I hope your stay in Heaven is going perfect.

*I send prays to him and his family.

“ I thought it was fitting that the sun just refused to shine today. I met Wyatt at a Scout Halloween party. I was working the fishing game. He kept sneaking off to the side, picking out the candy he wanted me to give him, then casting the fishing pole for me to put the candy on. He was just so sweet I let him play over and over like that. All I can offer you is a promise to never forget Wyatt and the smiles he shared. Rest in heaven, sweet boy.

“ We first met Wyatt on a cold and blustery winter day when he was walking past our house crying. His smile and happy outlook touched both our hearts. He and Caden would rund down to our house if no one was home at grandma and grandpa's house after school just 2 doors down. First thing he would say is Hi, and then I'm hungry. John would take Wyatt to the kitchen and he could pick out any snack he wanted, his favorite was string cheese or pop tarts! His smiles and hugs you couldn't get enough of them. We will miss this little angel and think of him when a school bus goes past our house.

“ Well, I never met this brave little soul but I followed his journey. He was such a bright light in the world of darkness. Fighting that nasty cancer with all his might. He was a fighter. Now his pain is gone, the time of being stuck and poked is over. He is free as a bird. Bless his soul. He has won his race. He has crossed that victory line and rests in the arms of Jesus. He's a happy little lamb now. Prayers for the family and all those whose lives he touched.

“ This is something I NEVER thought I would ever have to write. Knowing that this is your obituary pains me so deep within. It's very difficult to write or even think of what to say right now.

Wyatt, although I never had the opportunity to have met you, your infectious smile brought so much joy into my life. Seeing you endure so much but being the BRAVEST kid I know truly touched my heart. I know when you would cry, I was crying along side you. I felt the fear, confusion the hurt and uncertainty every post your family would write. Watching your child go through the things you did within the past 6 years is extremely difficult. Cancer NEVER should've picked you & I am so sorry it did. I prayed so many nights that it would just go away and never come back and at times, I think those prayers did work, but Cancer seemed to find its way back and refused to let go once again.

My heart aches for your family during this time. I wish more than anything for them to have another moment with you. This is all so unfair & I am so sorry! just know that your whole family is wrapped tightly in hugs & receiving many prayers right now all over the world.

Wyatt you are deeply missed & loved by so many. Look over your mom, dad & brothers often. I know they're going to need you now more than anything! Enjoy playing with your friends you met & lost along this journey, as well as family members who continued to watch over you. Rest easy sweetheart & I will keep you alive in my thoughts, always. 🧡

“ I am a close friend to Wyatt's cousin, Stephanie, who loves him very much. I've had the honor of getting to learn of Wyatt's amazingness and seeing how he's touched so many lives. His battle reached and inspired many individuals. Although I wish loss on no one, and I'm aware his absence earthside will mean great pain for many, I thank God he can not only rest now in peaceful bliss, but also live to his fullest! Until the day his family is reunited with him, I pray for their comfort and strength as they walk through their grief in the years to come. I pray they will turn to You in every moment of pain. Hold them in Your mighty hands, Lord, and carry them through. Let them see Your love in those individuals around them that You send to provide comfort at the times when it is needed most.
